MONITORING AND EVALUATION

YOGYAKARTA, INDONESIA, SEPTEMBER 19-24, 2011

WHY MONITORING AND EVALUATION

Monitoring & Evaluation (M&E) play important role in increasing the relevance, effectiveness, efficiency, outcomes & impacts, and sustainability of an intervention program or project. When conducted in a participatory way, M&E would bring considerable opportunity to empower beneficiaries and simultaneously educate the stakeholders. It will encourage project managers & management, beneficiaries and stakeholders to understand the context and reality of the project and to learn from the experience to improve project performance.

The Training Program on Monitoring and Evaluation is extremely important for learning about the achievement/deviation from original concerns and problems faced by programs being implemented, so that corrective measures can be taken in time.

Monitoring is the systematic collection and analysis of information as a project progresses. It is aimed at improving the efficiency and effectiveness of a project or organization. It is based on targets set and activities planned during the planning phases of work. It helps to keep the work on track, and can let management know when things are going wrong. If done properly, it is an invaluable tool for good management, and it provides a useful base for evaluation.

Monitoring ensures that

- inputs are ready in time
- works plans are followed closely
- adjustments can be made and corrective action taken as and when necessary
- people who need to know are kept informed
- constraints and bottlenecks are found; and
- resources are used efficiently.

Evaluation is the comparison of actual project impacts against the agreed strategic plans. It looks at what it set out to do, at what it has accomplished, and how it accomplished. It can be formative (taking place during the life of a project or organization, with the intention of improving the strategy or way of functioning of the project or organization). It can also be summative (drawing learning from a completed project or an organization that is no longer functioning). Evaluation is often carried out by policy makers and helps in assessing whether the project has brought benefits to those for whom it was intended. An evaluator is expected to examine:

- whether it was right to have invested resources in the project in the context of competing needs;
- whether the underlying assumptions and design were right;
- whether progress was made towards planning changes, and if not, why; and
- unplanned changes that may have occurred.

OBJECTIVES

CLIMATE

Yogyakarta enjoys a tropical climate, with warm sunshine and correspondingly high temperatures for the best part of the year. The average daily temperature is between 26°C and 28°C, with highs not exceeding 35°C and lows rarely dipping below 18°C. Humidity is relatively high, which can give the city a sticky feeling, especially in the rainy season when humidity can be as high as 75 per cent.

Yogyakarta experiences two seasons: the dry season running from May to October and the wet season occupying the remainder of the year. While the wet season occupies a lengthy period, rainfall is not constant, with the heaviest rains experienced between January and April.

The lowest temperatures are experienced between October and January, with evenings and early mornings offering pleasant cool spells. This is a popular time for visitors to visit, as are the months of May, June and July.

ELECTRICITY

Most of hotels, offices and banks are using 220-volt electricity voltage.

THE RUPIAH BILLS AND MONEY MATTERS

YOGYAKARTA

Yogyakarta is both the name of a province and the capital city within the province. Yogyakarta is commonly called the 'cultural heart' and 'soul city' of Java, thanks to its rich history, heritage and commitment to preserving Javanese tradi-

Visitors flock to the city in their thousands to see its plethora of cultural attractions, among which are royal buildings, religious structures and fascinating museums. The Borobudur Temple is a highlight, often mentioned alongside Cambodia's Angkor Wat and Egypt's Karnak Temple for its historical importance and architectural significance. The Sultan's Palace, or kraton, is also high up on the city's list of culturally significant sites.

Yogyakarta's commitment to preserving traditional Javanese arts such as batik, gamelan music, puppet shows, drama and poetry has give the city its reputation as a centre for culture. There are plenty of opportunities to appreciate these art forms in Yogyakarta, with regular displays and a number of annual festivals dedicated to showcasing the performing arts.

Eating out in the city can be an enjoyable experience, with local eateries in Yogyakarta offering popular Indonesian dishes as well as local specialties. If trying the traditional food is an integral part of the holiday for you, then Yogyakarta won't disappoint with its varied selection of street vendors, authentic eateries and up market restaurants to choose from.

The city is reached easiest via its own airport (Adisucipto International Airport), which services a number of domestic connections as well as limited international flights. For most people, the easiest way to reach Yogyakarta is via an international flight to Jakarta and then a domestic transfer to Yogyakarta. Alternatively, there are direct flights from Singapore and Kuala Lumpur.

History

Yogyakarta's beginnings date to the 9th century, when Buddhist and Hindu kingdoms were the dominant civilisations in the region. During this early period, magnificent religious structures such as Ratu Boko, Borobudur and Prambanan were erected near Yogyakarta.

The city only really began to develop in the 18th century however, expanding out of what was originally the Muslim Mataram Kingdom under the rule of Paku Buwono II. Following Buwono's death, a conflict arose between his brother and son, which was fuelled considerably by Dutch colonists looking to split the kingdom into small autonomous divisions.

The Dutch eventually succeeded and Mataram was split into the Surakarta Hadiningrat (ruled by Sunan Pakubuwono III) and Ngayogyakarta Hadiningrat (ruled Sultan Hamengku Buwono I) kingdoms. It was the latter kingdom that eventually became known as Yogyakarta.

Yogyakarta played a major role in Indonesia's quest for independence and in recognition of this it was upgraded from a city to a province in 1950. Since then, Yogyakarta has become semi-autonomous, enjoying a high level of self-governance.
